EIGHT ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

SEVEN NAMED TO MACE IN CHAPEL TODAY

Treize Announces Men Selected in Election to Honorary Fraternity

Election of seven men, three seniors and four juniors, into Mace, local honorary fraternity, was announced this morning in convocation by Prof. F. W. Treize, faculty advisor. The qualities of leadership, moral fortitude, and scholastic attainment were used as a basis for selection.

Following are the seniors who were honored:

Michael Gochbauer, Appleton.
Kenneth Johnson, Chippewa Falls.
Joseph Kexel, Jefferson.

The four juniors are:

Lawrence Oosterhous, Appleton.
William Foote, Appleton.
John Reeve, Appleton.
Robert Law, Menominee, Mich.

Present senior members of the honorary organization who chose the new members at a meeting Wednesday evening are: Marshall Wiley, president; Roy Marston, secretary; and Orvis Schmidt.

Prof. Treize Speaks

In announcing the elections Prof. Treize said: "History has carried the emblem of the Mace as a symbol of authority from the dawn of representative government to the present time. Mace represents the authority of the law and the responsibilities of citizenship which are dedicated to the attainment of the ideals for which governments have been founded and are perpetuated. Mace presumes a sincere loyalty to the institution and its ideals—the 'noblesse oblige' of a worthy son."

All of the men chosen are outstanding on the campus. Gochbauer was chairman of Lawrence day last year. His three years on the basketball squad were climaxed yesterday when he was named honorary captain of the 1932-33 team. As a sophomore he was class treasurer, and in his junior year he sat on the Student senate. For the last two years he has been president of Beta Sigma Phi.

Johnson has been on the roster of the debate squad each of his four years in school. While a sophomore he was a member of the business staff of the Lawrentian. He is at present president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, which position he has held since last March.

Kexel led his class as president when a freshman. That same year he also played frosh football. He now holds the position of treasurer of the All College club. With the exception of his first year Kexel has been a proctor at Brokaw, and in addition, was president of Psi Chi Omega last year.

Oosterhous is business manager of the Lawrentian. This spring will find him concluding his third year on the varsity debate squad. He is a letter man in (Continued on page 4)

Complete Manual on How to Prepare Written Work

A manual of instruction for the preparation of written work has been drawn up by the faculty committee on curriculum and accepted by the rest of the faculty. Mimeographed copies of the manual may be obtained by the students and faculty from the circulation desk of the library.

The handbook contains instructions for the preparation of papers concerning margins, page headings, title pages, footnotes, punctuation, and bibliographies. It advocates the use of a good dictionary and such handbooks as College Handbook of Composition by Wooley and Scott, The Handbook of Writing by Grever and Jones, in preparing written work.

Campus Club Will Hold Guest Night At Meeting Friday

Campus club will meet next Friday, March 24, at Peabody Hall. This is to be guest night, and each member may bring guests. The program will consist of selections by the conservatory faculty quartet, which is composed of Miss Farrell, soprano, Miss Mueller, contralto, Mr. Hulbert, baritone, and Dean Waterman, tenor. The quartet will sing a song cycle, "Golden Threshold," by Liza Lehmann.

Also on the program will be heard Professor Daniel's Quintet in E Minor, which will be played by two violins, Professor Fullinwider and Lester Loehrke; viola, Professor Daniel; cello, Mr. Zickler; and piano, Mrs. Fullinwider.

The Fullinwider trio will also give some selections. After the program there will be a reception, which will be given by President and Mrs. Wriston, and Dean and Mrs. Waterman.

Town Girls Will Give Scholarship

Association Formulates Plans To Raise Money for New Scholarship

After reorganizing and drawing up a constitution, the Town Girls' association has undertaken the establishment of a scholarship for some deserving town girl. Included in this organization are women from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Kimberly, and Little Chute who are attending Lawrence and who do not reside in a dormitory.

The first definite step in raising money for this newly established scholarship is the sponsoring by the association of a benefit movie which will be shown sometime next month. The exact dates have not, as yet, been announced.

Purposes of Organization

The purpose of this organization is to keep town girls in closer contact with other campus groups, to foster better social spirit, and to offer a scholarship for a deserving town girl or girls.

At the next supper meeting of the organization, which will be held April 3, new officers will be elected to replace the present holders of cabinet positions, namely: Lila Locksmith, president; Margaret Briggs, vice president; Dolores Dohr, treasurer; and Alice Mae Whittier, secretary, all '34. Mrs. M. M. Bober is sponsor for the group.

Mrs. Jacques Donates Volumes on Book Plates

A gift of several volumes on bookplates has been received by the College library from Mrs. Bertha Evelyn Jacques of Chicago. These books supplement her previous gift of a collection of some rare and valuable bookplates and will be of special value to art students.

Among the books are Allen's American Bookplates, Dixon's Concerning Bookplates, and others containing choice reproductions and authoritative historical information.

An exhibition on bookplates has been arranged at the library.

Baker Gives Illustrated Lecture Tuesday Evening

Dr. Louis C. Baker presented an illustrated lecture on the churches and parks of Paris before the Christian Young Women's Association of the Congregational Church, Tuesday evening. The films showing the parks were hand tinted by Dr. Baker with the aid of a magnifying glass.

"SILVER KING" IS PRESENTED SUCCESSFULLY

Old-Fashioned Melodrama Proves To Be Gratifying Success

By Roy McNeil

True to prediction, the Lawrence chapel reverberated with the boos and hisses, old-fashioned music, and the many atmospheric contributions of a genuine production of a 50 year old melodrama, when "The Silver King" was presented Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The audience reacted beautifully to the entrances and exits of the heroine, hero, villain, and detective. The music cues of such entrances and exits were well nigh drowned by the enthusiastic acclaim, in various and sundry forms, of the audiences. "The Silver King" professedly points to the beautiful moral of "In Memoriam"—

"That men may rise on stepping stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

Story of Wilfred Denver

How Denver dodges the detectives who are on his track, how, supposed to have been killed in a railway accident from which he escapes, he begins a new life under a new name, how the reformed and sober scapegrace makes a fortune in the silver mines of Nevada, and how with the sobriquet of the "Silver King" he returns to London to rescue his wife and children from misery and to discover proofs of his own innocence by associating in disguise with the burglar gang who had murdered Ware, need not be told here; it has been seen.

The play was a gratifying success, financially, and in the manner with which the audiences received it. In this the acting must be held to count for something. John Schneider, '34, though prominent in Lawrence college theatre productions for some time, has seldom exhibited greater power, either in the direction of concentrated energy or of (Continued on page 2)

Pillows To The Right, Pillows To The Left; Maybe Brokaw Isn't So Dumb

By the Quindnuncs

Pillows to the right of them, pillows to the left of them, but also, pillows behind and under them . . . Well, they were wise. Maybe Brokaw isn't as dumb as we thought . . . you never can tell. Next time we are going to bring along our lunch, too . . . and who would have thought that gorgeous tall blond Beta would make such a wuunderfuuuulll Hawkshaw . . . his technique!

Anyway, melodrama brought 'em out in seeds, or maybe it was because Miss Woodworth said that she'd give a "D" to anyone who didn't go to the play. Was that a threat or a promise? What wouldn't we go to for a "D" in a certain course!

The Bouquet Didn't Come

What bothers us, however, is the fact that we heard there was going to be a gorgeous bouquet of cabbages and carrots sent up to "Our Little Nell" from an admiring cortege, and we waited and waited and waited . . . but it didn't come. Personally, in her condition, we think Nell would've welcomed it with open arms, but maybe Brokaw needed it worse.

Did you know that Snyder's tables have their purposes and purposes? But we would like to know . . . was it starvation, or melodrama which made her faint? You guess? But it would have to be a Sig Ep to the rescue. And then in walks Hawkshaw to save the day. We are going to get him for one of

College Entertains High School Honor Students Monday

Lawrence college entertained the Appleton High school honor students at Brokaw and Ormsby halls last Monday evening. Invitations were sent out to 57 honor students in the junior and senior classes of the local high school. Of these, 51 students, 27 men and 24 women, were able to attend.

The students were entertained at dinner and later were guests of the College at the play, "Silver King." The guests were Mr. H. H. Helble, principal of the high school, and Miss Mary Baker, dean of girls at the high school. The following college students who are not residents of the dormitories acted as hosts and hostesses: Norman Clapp, '35, Ben Rafoth and Roy Marston, both '33, Susan Beals, '36, and Betty Meyer, '34. Miss Woodworth was a guest at Ormsby, and Mr. Mitchell and Dr. Wriston were guests at Brokaw.

Student Senate To Combine Lawrence Day and May Fete

Because the activities of Lawrence day and the annual May fete were felt to duplicate themselves, the Student senate took action Tuesday evening to combine the two this spring.

The suggestion that finally culminated in the action was made by Margaret Gile, '34, secretary of the All College club. Enogene Perschnacher made the motion to that effect; it was seconded and carried.

Marshall Wiley, '33, announced to the Senate that Mace will act collectively as chairman of the Lawrence day arrangements. The combined Lawrence day and May fete will be held May 20.

The Lawrence Women's association had laid tentative plans for an elaborate May fete. The program was to include special entertainment throughout the day. Inasmuch as the entertainment planned would be similar to that of Lawrence day, the decision was made to combine the two days. The May fete would be an added attraction for the high school students here on Lawrence day, and at the same time the problem of providing a program for both would be simplified.

Debaters Give Chapel Program

Johnson Meets Connor in Close of Debate on Banking System

"We of the affirmative sincerely believe that if our plan was now in effect you would not be worrying about banks opening," said Kenneth Johnson, '33, in opening the second half of the debate on federal regulation of all banking functions in Wednesday's chapel.

"As my colleague, Mr. Schmidt, has pointed out," he continued, "we are really confronted with two problems. Our ultimate goal is a reformed financial structure fully capable of performing the all-important functions it must perform in our modern economic life. To achieve this we must first set up a sound banking system, and secondly, we must make sure that it will enjoy the confidence of the public; for without confidence, financial systems, however sound, are utterly useless."

Unification Essential

"Since Mr. Schmidt has pointed out that the present defects in our banking system can be satisfactorily remedied only by unification under federal regulation," Johnson went on to offer a (Continued on page 4)

WERE WE OBLIVIOUS

Periodically, critics have severely censored our educational system because of the impervious attitude it has adopted toward current events of especial importance and interest. At times such a criticism has been justified, but just as often it has not been. If truly educated citizens are to be graduated each year, principles and backgrounds, which can be derived only from studies not directly connected with the occurrences of a particular day, must be stressed. There are times, however, when attention should be temporarily shifted to great events that are occurring beyond the range of academic walls. The recent banking crisis with all its ramifications was just such a time.

From the moment President Roosevelt proclaimed the nation-wide bank moratorium until certain establishments were opened Monday, speculation was rife concerning the reasons for the move, the possibilities of using scrip, the advisability of inflation, the immediate measures that would be adopted, the final outcome of the affair, and innumerable other topics. Not only because of the direct repercussions felt by every student but also because the very economic stability of our country depended on the steps taken, surveys of each day's developments were more widespread and critical than ordinarily. In the minds of most persons rose many questions. Explanations, ideas, theories, prophecies all needed amplification and comment by trained scholars. Information derived from various discussions was not sufficient. Bandyng ideas across the dinner table did not serve the purpose. The burden of giving true enlightenment and sound concepts rested on those with years of training behind them.

That burden was not assumed in an adequate fashion. One or two class periods in a few courses were given over to a consideration of the banking problem. Yet an unofficial survey would indicate that out of twenty courses selected in the departments of economics, history, and government, only four or five gave any great amount of time to a worthwhile discussion. For this astonishing figure many valid explanations can undoubtedly be offered. Nevertheless the proposition still stands that in the midst of activities which the student of the future will be forced to study a golden opportunity was lost. The value of a professor's correlating, unifying, and explanatory abilities in a field in which he is more or less directly connected did not appear to test or to clear the heterogeneous conceptions derived from perusing the daily papers.

Certainly most classes are not conducted on such an inflexible schedule that a break in the program cannot be made. Perhaps, however, deviations from regularity were purposely and advisedly kept at a minimum. Yet under the circumstances it seems that time taken even from the regular routine class work to follow events that were and still are of so tremendous significance would be time especially well spent. The opportunity should not be allowed to pass.

pathos, as in the character of Wilfred Denver, while Margaret Hecht, '36, as Nellie Denver, is assured of a splendid future with the college theatre group by the outstanding merits of her appearance in this play.

Leads Display Ability

Despite the humorous attitude which the audience naturally developed toward this melodrama, Margaret Hecht brought moisture to the eyes in her dire poverty and exultation to the heart with her joy at seeing her husband and "living happily ever after." Especially notable in Schneider's performance were his scenes in which he wakes to find Ware's body and in which he describes his dreams, a murderer's dreams, in the fourth act. The energy and emotion put forth by the leads merited hearty, sincere applause for the characters in their subsequent entrances.

As to Eric Volkert's Daniel Jaikes, we cannot attempt to describe a work so full of tenderness, beauty, and humanity. The old and faithful servant, toiling unselfishly for his mistress, considerate and self-denying, and sweet-hearted to the end—this was in the acting of Volkert a personage of grave, lovely charm.

Durus and Turver Good

Lloyd Durus, as Coombs the marine store dealer, exhibited one of the most carefully studied, consistent parts in the play. Charles Turver, as his cohort in crime, provided a finished contrast to the other characters in his "rough, tough, and full of sand" presentation of character.

The small parts were carefully managed and excellently done. Especially notable among these was the work of Howard Aderhold, in his comic presentation of the detective. Joseph Gilman, while playing a relatively small part, played it to a nicety and perfection which bid fair to dim the leads. He, as a novel species of rogue, a villain who dresses irreproachably and steals silverware from his friends, acted with delightful suavity.

Production Difficult

The scenery, representing the largest task ever assumed by the college production staff, put realism into the scenes. The neatness and efficiency with which the numerous and difficult scene changes were handled was carried on under the direction of Chestley Gebhardt.

Dorothy Howell directed the costuming and did a very thorough job of it. The staff, under her direction, collected the costumes from various homes in Appleton, and altered them to fit the person and the period.

Balgie, Lindsay In Radio Debate On New Political Party

Alice Balgie, '34, and Kathryn Lindsay, '35, presented the affirmative side of the question which advocates the organization of a third national political party in a debate over WHBY Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lindsay began the discussion by pointing out the need for changes in the alignment of political parties. She expressed the thought that the two present, important parties, the Democrats and the Republicans, no longer reflect the true differences of public opinion. "It seems," said Miss Lindsay, "that the real differences of viewpoint lie between liberalism and conservatism. Yet we all recognize how our parties today are split on this very question of conservatism and liberalism." She then continued by pointing out how mixed are the national politics of the present parties.

The second speaker, Miss Balgie, proposed a means of bringing about the alignment through the introduction of a new party. She explained the organization of the League for Independent Political Action headed by John Dewey. "The League is starting now," she continued, "with the hope of being able to put forth candidates in the next national election." In closing she said, "We cannot have the permanent platform before we have the party. It is not the platform which we are asking you to support, but rather this alignment on the basis of liberalism and conservatism."

Book Review

Mother and Four—By Isabel Wilder; Coward-McCann—$2.

As a result of the success of this, her first novel, there is no doubt but that it will gain for its author a name in her own right instead of being referred to as Thornton Wilder's sister.

Mother and Four is one of the most realistic and human stories imaginable. It is this simplicity and plainness of characters and situation that make it so appreciable.

The mother, Laura Derwent, a most capable woman, is left to rear her four distinctive and unusual children by the untimely death of her husband, a university professor. The first of the said four is Arthur, who is the oldest, being but 15, and who immediately feels his responsibility as the man of the family and takes it all very seriously. Larry is debonaire and brilliant and goes through life in a happy and carefree manner. Spencer, who is 10 years old is musical and literary, something of a compromise between the scholarly Arthur and the daring Larry. The youngest of the clan is a girl, christened Laura but throughout the book called Tiny.

Laura Deserves Admiration

One is apt to become a trifle disgusted with her naive and youthful remarks, but in spite of this one must remember she is the baby of the family. She is deserving of admiration for the business-like way in which she guides the household in the absence of her mother. Another individual who may be considered a part of the family is Carlo, the son of a friend, who lives with the Derwents while his family is in Italy. His affiliations with the Derwents is of no small importance and is especially advantageous to Spencer and incidentally quite important to Tiny.

The doings of the family are discussed in great detail but do not become monotonous because of the distinctive character of each individual and the amount of time covered by the book.

Laura Derwent faces her problems squarely though at times they seem overpowering. She finds a means for somewhat alleviating financial difficulties and removing other obstacles in the way of the family well being. She is truly a remarkable person always with the welfare of her family uppermost in her mind; she guides them physically and spiritually through youth.

Mother and Four is a sort of family history, for we first meet the Derwents when they are mere children and follow them through school and college until in the end they are established in homes of their own in England, China, and Rome. It might well be a family chronicle of some of our own contemporaries.

Delta Iota entertained Dr. Denyes, Dr. Peabody, Prof. Trezise, and Mr. Mead at dinner Wednesday night.

For the last week Coach Denney had been unable to find or play most of the squash racquet players whom he had been meeting almost daily since the college had purchased new racquets and balls some time ago. Instead, everyone was playing handball. Upon inquiring why so many of the students weren't playing squash any more, our athletic director found out that the fraternity handball season was here and the Greek lads had been engaged in practicing for and playing in their tournament.

Sam

Some of the fraternities may be tempted during the present handball competition to shift their best man or two from a number one or two position down to a three or four position when meeting another stronger fraternal team. The motive would be that they would probably lose all of their matches without the shift because each of their opponent's players were a little better than their own, whereas if they placed their best players down lower in the bracket and played them against their opponent's weaker men, their hopes of thus winning a few games from the stronger team would be much brighter. Some rumors of this practice were afloat on the outwardly placid campus during the latter part of this week. Such a practice, if detected when the criminal fraternity has replaced and rebracketed its players in later games, will be punished accordingly by the inter-fraternity arbitration board.

After the number of fake entrants in the all college wrestling meet had been eliminated, the exhibition of grunts and strength got under way Tuesday and Thursday with a multitude of preliminary bouts. While the entries were numerous and inexperienced in the midge divisions, with as many as five or more preliminary bouts being necessary to determine the finalists in each class, the heavyweight division was left pretty much alone because of the prowess of Johnny Vogel. However, three frosh football men, Scott, Donnelly, and Shreve, were out to attempt to wrest the title from Vogel.

Roy Marston and Ward Rosebush are all set to put on an "exhibition" boxing match as the feature attraction for the all campus boxing finals to be held Tuesday night. Both men would have liked to have entered the regular all campus meet, but they didn't because they felt they lacked enough experience in comparison with the other entrants. The result is that they have decided to get together and give this "exhibition" as the windup bout of the show. It should be plenty good, from more ways than one.

Vikings, State Normal In Intramural Meet

CONTEST WILL BE SECOND ON VIKE PROGRAM

Thirty Intramural Stars Will Invade Alexander Gym Tomorrow

The second intercollegiate intramural meet of the season will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p.m. Some 30 of Milwaukee State Teachers college's intramural stars will invade Alexander gymnasium and engage the Vikings in swimming, wrestling, handball, and volleyball contests.

The handball contests will be played first and the other contests will be conducted in such a manner that the spectators may witness the entire program. The climax of the afternoon's program will be a volleyball game between faculty teams representing the two institutions.

The Ped athletes will be guests of the fraternities for their noon meal and will be entertained by the Greeks until the time of the contests. Following the competition the Lawrence Athletic board will serve lunch to the visiting teams.

Herman Kleige, Milwaukee mentor, will bring a well balanced squad in all sports. The Milwaukee institution has a modern physical education plant, that enables them to come adequately prepared to show the local athletes considerable pyrotechnics.

Swimming Meet

The swimming meet will be a regulation affair rather than a display of specialties. The list of events include the 200 yard free style, 75 yard breast stroke, 75 yard back stroke, 150 yard medley relay, 75 yard free style, and a diving event.

In the aquatic contests Ted Wilder, Wally Clark, Bud Shier, Al Woehler, Bob Mueller, Don Dickson, and Bill Watkins will bear the brunt of the Lawrence attack. Schier and Gage will swim in the breast stroke; Woehler, Keitel, and Mueller in the back stroke; and Clark and Wilder in the free style. Dodge and Woehler will dive against the Milwaukee mermen. In the 150 yard medley relay Schier, Woehler, and Clark will represent Lawrence, while in the 200 yard relay the four Lawrence men who will attempt to outstroke the Peds will be Wilder, Dickson, Gage, and either Kirkland or Keitel.

Following the elimination tournament Thursday evening, Coach Percy Clapp named the following wrestlers to compete against Kleige's proteges. In the 125 pound class Wahlstrom or Art Roemer; 135 pound class E. Wenberg; 145 pound class H. Wenberg; 155 pound class W. Johnson; 165 pound class Dennis; 175 pound class Roeder; and in the heavyweight class either Shreve or Donnelly will compete. In the additional wrestling events Vogel and Scott will strive for the heavyweight championship of the school, and Leech and Trass will engage in their semi-final bout in the 155 pound class. The winner of this bout will meet Johnson for the championship of the school next Thursday evening.

The Delta Sigs hold the advantage over the Psi Chis, while the Sig Eps and Theta Phis are scheduled to fight an even match. Saturday's fraternity matches have been postponed until March 29 because of a conflict with the Milwaukee meet.

All freshmen who are interested in dramatic work are requested to try out. Let the director be the judge of your dramatic ability. Copies of the plays are on reserve at the college library.

Test Track Men In Meet Today

Inter-Squad Meet This Afternoon Will Compare Lettermen With Candidates

By Sam Smith

With only eight lettermen to form a nucleus for the 1933 Lawrence track team, Coach A. C. Denney will hold the first of a series of inter-squad track meets this afternoon at 4:30 to determine the merits of his many sophomore candidates.

This afternoon's meet will be composed of a series of seven indoor events which should serve as a basis to find out how the freshman and sophomore aspirants stack up against the small group of letter winners. The entire track squad has been divided into two groups, the Blacks and the Whites, with the former being captained by Roy Marston and the latter by John Reeve. Besides Marston, Lloyd Corrigan, Lawrence Oosterhous, and Harlow Roate are the lettermen on the Black team. The White squad will have Reeve, Bill Foote, and Emery Ansorge as its only lettermen. Homer Porter is the only other eligible letterman in school, but he is not out for track at present.

Three Relays Scheduled

The events for the meet this afternoon are a 50 yard dash, 45 yard low hurdles, high jump, and shotput for the individual entries. In addition, three relays will be run. A sprint relay with each of the four men running two laps; a medley relay with the first runner going three laps, the second six, the third three, and the last man twelve; and a mile relay with each of the four men running three laps. All running events will take place on the main floor of the gym, and the shotput and high jump will occur in the track room.

Each man will be allowed to enter only two events this afternoon, participation in the relay to count as an event, in order to give more of the (Continued on page 4)

Boxing, Wrestling Contests Advance To Final Rounds

By Art Farwell

The intramural boxing and wrestling meet held under the supervision of Coach P. O. Clapp has advanced into the final bracket with the completion of the bouts last evening. The meet is being held on the main floor of the new Alexander gym; the bouts are decidedly faster than those seen in previous meets.

The wrestling matches last evening were refereed by Coach Clapp, while the boxing bouts were handled by Joe Shields, Appleton high school coach. Mr. Seims, Appleton high school, and Gordon McIntyre, sport correspondent on the "Appleton Post Crescent," officiated as judges of the boxing matches.

The meet will windup with a card of twenty-three matches in boxing and wrestling next Tuesday evening. President H. M. Wriston will act as honorary referee of the meet at that time.

Opening Match

The opening match of last evening was the championship in the 125 lb. class. A. Roemer wrestled Wahlstrom for the seven minutes and was awarded the decision on a time advantage. Bennett in the 135 lb. class pinned Doc Elliott to the mat in a scant minute and a quarter. Roate and Ray Johnson put on one of the best matches of the evening when they wrestled overtime in the 145 lb. division; the bout went to Roate when he pinned his man in the first overtime period.

Johnson, Connor Conclude Debate In Convocation

plan for solving the problem of establishing and maintaining confidence in our banks. His proposal was similar to that introduced last spring by Prof. Mehrbach of New Jersey before the subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

It is calculated that "had this plan been in operation between January, 1921, and December 31, 1931, every loss would have been paid in full, and today there would be a reserve of two billion dollars in the guarantee fund." Under this plan a depositor would pay a maximum premium of only 50 cents on every hundred dollars.

In conclusion Johnson summarized the affirmative case, and then yielded to Henry Connor, '33, who continued the constructive argument for the negative.

Connor Ridicules Plan

Connor opened by assuring his audience that the A-B-C outline of the affirmative was more appropriate for a high school than a college audience. "Here we have a typical affirmative remedy for our banking ills; no apparent bother about a few all-important details; just outline a broad plan and trust that the audience, which is grasping for any straw in the flood of adverse circumstances, will hail the idea as a heaven-sent cure for our banking ills," he said.

"Bank management," he continued, "will be encouraged by a guarantee of deposits, so, while one half the affirmative plan, federal regulation, is vainly trying to curb mismanagement, the other half of the plan is an open stimulus to that mismanagement. A house divided against itself!

Asks Three Questions

"How will this fund be administered to insure absence of graft in the political arena of Washington? Do federal regulation and good management go together? If this fund is kept in government bonds, will not dumping them on the market be disastrous?"

Johnson replied in a five minute rebuttal. "We realize petty politics will always exist, but we are willing to substitute this small amount of national loss to the extraordinary burden of failing banks, frozen credit, and idle business." As for Mr. Mitchell and the National City Bank of New York, Johnson retorted that no system is perfect but that the affirmative plan is certainly a step forward. "A banker still his his capital and business prestige at stake which a guarantee of deposits does not save. Would he willfully mismanage his bank and lose both of those?" he asked.

Working Reserve Possible

"We do want this money kept in government bonds, but this does not insure a further depression of commercial papers as Mr. Connor would have you believe. All banks don't fail at once, some are liquidating while others are failing and thus a working reserve would be kept in cash. Insurance companies today do a business as large as this successfully."

Previously, Monday morning, David Fulton, minus his green hat, and Orvis Adrian Schmidt had presented the opening arguments of the debate. Schmidt had outlined the banking situation, attributing its weakness to low standards, poor management, and inadequate regulation, and had proceeded to advance as a remedy, national regulation of all banking functions.

track. Until recently he was president of Oxford Fellowship. He worked on the business staff of the 1933 Ariel. Oosterhous is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Footo was class president as a freshman and sophomore and at present is a member of the Student senate. For three years he has been on the sports staff of the Lawrentian. He has played two years of varsity basketball, and also has won his letter in track. He is a member of Beta Sigma Phi.

Reeve was homecoming chairman last fall. He is student representative on the Athletic board and because of that position he also belongs to the Student senate. As a sophomore he won his "L" in track. Reeve is a member of Sunset players and his taken part in several plays. He belongs to Beta Sigma Phi.

Law is editor of the Lawrentian. During his freshman and sophomore years he was a member of the varsity debate squad. At present he is the junior class representative on the Forensic board and as a freshman he was also a representative on the board. For the last two years he has been a member of the Student senate. Law belongs to Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Tau Sigma Alpha Will Meet To Select Members

Tau Sigma Alpha, honorary women's journalistic society, will meet this afternoon at 4:00 for the purpose of selecting new members for the organization.

Fulton had responded that such might be the evils but such was not the remedy. National regulation not only failed to touch the real, underlying causes of the trouble, but it actually involved a terrific cost in governmental inefficiency, political graft, and stifled individualism. Of these he had painted a horrible picture, and then had suspended the debate until Connor and Johnson moved into action Wednesday.

Trackmen Will Have First Trial Meet Of Season

candidates an opportunity to show what they can do. Four places will count, with the scoring going 5, 3, 2, 1. First place in the relays will count 10 points for the winning team and 5 points for second place. The captains will be allowed to enlarge their teams to any extent, with the provision that ninth semester, ineligible, and paper chemistry men will not be allowed to participate.

Among the non-lettermen on the Black team who are expected to score heavily in the meet are: Polkinghorn, Fuchs, Vogel, Woehler, Tsuru, Feurig, Pfeiffer, Simonds, Gram, and Smith. The White squad is depending upon West, High, Roemer, Bradley, Kellogg, Ziegler, Hecker, Sheldon, Zeigler, Rath, Nagel, and Mourad.

Outlook Is Gloomy

With the loss of Vander Bloemen, Haase, Dodge, and Nemacheck from last spring's team which placed third in the Big Four meet, prospects are none too bright this year. The question about how far Lawrence will go in track circles this spring depends for the most part on the showing of a large group of sophomore athletes. Heading this group are Phil Bradley, Bob Polkinghorn, Oscar Gram, Charles Pfeiffer, Art Roemer, Burt Kellogg, and Shigeto Tsuru in the distance events. In the dashes are Howard High, Clyde West, Erwin Ziegler, and Eric Volkert; while in the field events John Vogel, Gordon Simonds, Henry Nagel, Al Woehler, Stanley Fuchs, and Roland Smith appear to be the best.

Lettermen Are Threats

Marston, captain last season, will lead the group of eight lettermen this year. The former captain will be entered in the two hurdle events, the high jump, and the broad jump. Roate heads the list of javelin throwers and should do well this year. Bill Footo is an outstanding high jumper and pole vaulter, having tied for first in both events in the conference meet here last spring, and should win them both again this year. Corrigan in the dashes, Oosterhous in the 440 yard run, Ansoorge and Reeve in the half mile, and Porter in the mile and two mile complete the list of lettermen.

The regular conference schedule opens April 29 this spring with a dual meet against Carroll down at Waukesha. As a new feature this year in the Big Four, both the golf and the tennis teams will make the trips for their dual and conference meets in conjunction with the track squad. The complete schedule follows:

April 29—Carroll at Waukesha.

May 6—Ripon at Ripon.

May 13—Beloit here.

May 20—Big Four Meet at Beloit.

May 27—Midwest Meet at Beloit.

Boxing and Wrestling Tourney Near Completion

Johnson and Elston fighting in the 155 lb. class put on a good show, but Johnson defeated the defending champion when he pinned him with an arm scissors and a half nelson. Dennis wrestling in the 165 lb. class out-grunted Carlson to win on a slight time advantage. Kuether and Schier mauled each other over the mat, but Schier soon pinned his opponent; this bout was in the 175 lb. class.

Scott took Shreve in the heavy-weight class on a fall in three minutes. Vogel and Donnelly patted hands, bit each other's ears, and crawled over each other to the amusement of the spectators with the decision going to Vogel.

The boxing matches were even more spectacular than the wrestling events; the boys tossed fists at each other in no conservative fashion. Delsart out-pounded Holmes in the 135 lb. class; Hoffman and Grimes were respectively victorious over Haueisen and Raprager in the 145 lb. class; while Hartwig mauled Schroeder for the decision in the 165 lb. class.

The results of Tuesday nights bouts were as follows:

135 lb. class—E. Wenberg won from Cherney on a fall, 4:0; Bennett won from Andy Holmes on a fall, 6:3; Widsteven won from Fiend on a fall, 6:50; and Elliott advanced when R. Johnson overweighed.

145 lb. class—H. Wenberg won from Volkert on a fall, 5:0; Chet Roberts won from Wiltz on a fall, 5:0; R. Johnson won from Fugere on a fall, 5:0; and Roate advanced on a bye.

155 lb. class—Trass advanced on a bye; Leech won from Dennis on a fall, 6:50; Bill Johnson won from Holzward on a fall, 3:0; and Elston won from Durbrow on a fall, 6:10.

165 lb. class—Woehler advanced on a bye; Hartwig won from Lindeman on a fall, 5:30; Carlson won from Hecker, default; and Dennis won from Kelley on a fall, 6:25.

175 lb. class—Kuether won from Dickson on a time advantage, 4:45.

handball, will perhaps bank on the same men that competed against Ripon, and Charles Betterer will pick his volleyball sextet from a large group who have turned out for practice.

In the faculty volleyball contest, Lawrence's prestige will be upheld by the following professors: Holmes, Trever, Cast, McConagha, Millis, Rancey, Crow, and Troyer. These gentlemen have been working out diligently several afternoons a week of late and should present a strong aggregation.

This is the second attempt that has been made this year by the athletic department to develop their program of "A sport for every man" and it is going far to confirm with the athletic programs that will enable a larger number of men to enter active intercollegiate competition. In tomorrow's contests no basketball men will be allowed to compete.

Fireside Fellowship Will Meet Sunday Evening

Fireside Fellowship will meet at the Methodist church at 5:30 Sunday evening. A discussion will follow the supper.

World News in Brief

The Austrian police in Vienna yesterday forcibly frustrated an attempt to hold a rump session of the diet in defiance of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' week-old dictatorship. The diet was dissolved a week ago Saturday when its three ranking officers resigned in a dispute over a railway issue, but since the dictatorship was proclaimed it has been trying desperately to resuscitate itself. Socialist leaders again voiced the threat of a general strike to fight the dictatorship, which they suspect is leading to a coalition of the Christian social government and Austrian Nazi elements.

After ebbing its lowest last October, the economic condition of France shows signs of stabilization and even of improvement. Tax collections in January, according to figures just made public, fell only $5,440,000 under the budget provisions for that month. In the previous month of December the deficit was more than three times as great and over six times as great last October.

A serious view is taken by the British government of the arrest of six British subjects in Moscow Saturday and Sunday on sabotage charges in connection with Russian electrical works, and it is quite possible that the affair may lead to a severance of diplomatic relations.
